French

This is a great chance to find out about the things which interest you at the same time as improving your language skills. Don't worry that you don't understand everything. Just try to understand the gist.

- Read a French news magazine like Le Nouvel Observateur or L'Express for current affairs or Paris Match for celebs news. They are available at many big newsagents and you can also get articles from them online.
- Listen to the news in French on the Internet, e.g. on RTL
- Watch French TV. All the main channels are available on satellite – RTL, TF1, A2. We now have satellite TV in Room 107. You are welcome to come and watch at lunchtime or after school, or any other time when the room is not being used for lessons.
- Listen to French radio stations. Go to listenlive.eu and choose according to your interests.
- Watch French films. The MFL department has copies of many of the following DVDs:
  - Les Choristes – an inspirational music teacher manages to transform a group of deprived French school children into a choir. Very moving and popular with all ages
  - Amelie – a quirky and very funny look at life through the eyes of a young French woman
  - Joyeux Noel – set during World War One. A look at events leading up to the famous truce declared on Christmas Eve 1916 enabling the Allied and German soldiers to sing and play football together.
  - La Classe – a look at a year in the life of a tough inner-city school in Paris. This is not a documentary but a docudrama. The main role is played by a teacher and the students are real inner-city schoolchildren.
- Listen to music in French

Recent artists:

- Christophe Mae – C'est ma Terre
- Gregoire – Toi et moi
- Garou
- Manu Chao

- Dip into French literature
  - Classics: Camus – L’Etranger, (Why didn’t the narrator cry when his mother died?)
  - Flaubert – Madame Bovary
  - Contemporary: Christophe Honore – Tout contre Leo, Une toute petite histoire d’amour

- Go to the theatre. Occasionally, plays by French dramatists are performed in English at the National Theatre or other London venues. The Barbican also has an annual international festival of theatre where there are occasional productions in French (with English surtitles.)

The Man Who Mistook His Wife for a Hat and Other Clinical Tales by Oliver W Sacks (Author) ISBN 978-0684853949

Mr Senior's Review: Sacks, the world's most famous practising psychiatrist, explores case studies of sufferers with brain disorders where people are unaware of their disorder – you will find out why they are unaware when you read the book! One case involves a man who cannot 'see' people when they stand still, mistaking his wife for a hat stand: hence the book’s title. This is an easy, informative book, which is why so many have read it. Not a book to take you off the beaten track but a great read all the same.

Seeing Voices by Oliver Sacks (Author) ISBN 978-0330320900

Mr Senior's Review: Another exploration by Sacks but less often read by students. Seeing Voices explores the issue of language and, in particular, sign language. The relationship between thought and language is explored – does limited language indicate limited thought? Interesting case studies are used and the footnotes are an intellectual step up from the main book and therefore worth reading. The first half of the book is the most informative and entertaining, so don't feel you need to read the whole book unless you get the urge!

Genie: A Scientific Tragedy

by Russ Rymer (Author) ISBN 978-0060924652

Mr Senior's Review: This is a journalistic account of the discovery of a 13 year-old girl kept in solitary confinement since the age of two years old by her abusive father. The scientific community studied and ‘looked after’ Genie (so named because, like a genie, she appeared to emerge from nowhere). Genie was used to explore whether language has a critical period to develop. A search on You Tube will find clips of Genie. The case study raises issues about the ethics of research you should find this an interesting read if you are keen to know more about cognitive sciences.
Difficult Conversations: How to Discuss What Matters Most

Review: You will face difficult conversations throughout your life, but now you can learn how to cope with them. This book provides a framework and various strategies for achieving better outcomes from hard exchanges. Douglas Stone, Bruce Patton and Sheila Heen use principles, illustrative stories to teach you how to understand the components of challenging conversations, and how to prepare for them and transform them into something constructive. The language of the book is clear, insightful, concise and always helpful. You can use these principles in your everyday life. Everyone from teenagers to mature adults can use the communication skills discussed in this wise book. The concepts are simple and if internalized could for example save the needless destruction of countless marriages. What excites me most is that it is so very readable and that its lessons are sufficiently simple that although it might take a life time to master - when applied you can see results in your own conversations and relationships immediately.

Mr Senior’s Review: This book is a theoretical and yet also a practical guide that helps the legal profession and clinical psychologists try to identify lying behaviour. The book explores the view that lying is an important feature of everyday life and forces us to examine the role of lying. The book begins in an amusing manner by challenging us to think about examples of famous lies and liars. A comprehensive range of guidelines and concrete suggestions for lie detection techniques are provided. A good read by a lecturer at Portsmouth University in their Psychology Dept.
